OFF-ROAD VEHICLE NOISE CONFERENCE
SET NOV. 10-11 IN SNOWBIRD, UTAH

MISSOULA--

The University of Montana, Missoula, and the U.S. Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture will cosponsor the "International Conference on Noise from Recreational Off-Road Vehicles (ORV)" Nov. 10-11 at Snowbird, Utah.

The conference will deal with the noise from all types of off-road vehicles. Purpose of the two-day program is to provide a rational basis for setting public policy in terms of land-use and noise regulation that best serves all interested parties.

Included in the conference will be field demonstrations, presentations of various viewpoints, land-use planning and enforcement procedures concerning ORV problems with noise and land use.

The conference keynote address will be presented by Zane G. Smith Jr., director of the USFS recreation staff. He will speak at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 10. Conference registration will be at 9 a.m. Monday, Nov. 10, and 8 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 11.

Additional information about the two-day program may be obtained from Dr. Robert B. Chaney Jr., associate professor of communication sciences and disorders, University of Montana, Missoula, Mont. 59801, or phone 243-4131. Chaney is program cochairman for the conference.
